Article 35 – Identification and classification of goods

1. Goods shall be identified and classified on the basis of the FEANCN, which shall be established by an order of the Minister of Finance of Georgia.
2. The FEANCN is a system of commodity classification codes which is consistent with the Nomenclature under the International Convention on the Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System and is detailed by eleven digits, taking into account the specifics of the national economy.
3. When declaring goods, a declarant shall specify a commodity code in accordance with the FEANCN.
4. The customs authorities shall control the accuracy of the commodity code specified by a declarant.

Article 36 – Origin of goods

1. The origin of goods shall be determined for the purpose of implementing measures to protect trade when bringing the goods into the customs territory of Georgia and/or taking the goods out of the customs territory of Georgia.
2. The origin of goods may be non-preferential or preferential.
3. The non-preferential origin of goods shall apply:
 - a) for the purpose of import tax, except for reliefs provided for by the treaty of Georgia;
 - b) for implementing non-tariff measures regulating foreign trade, which are established by other legal acts.
4. Goods shall be regarded as having non-preferential origin and shall be deemed to originate in the country where:
 - a) these goods were wholly obtained;

8. Procedures and rules for issuing a proof of origin for goods originating in Georgia, as well as for proving their origin, shall be determined by an ordinance of the Government of Georgia.

Chapter VI – Customs Value of Goods

Article 37 – General provisions of the customs valuation of goods

1. The customs valuation of goods shall be carried out in accordance with this Code and the procedures laid down in the Agreement on Implementation of Article VII of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade 1994.
2. During the declaration of goods, the declarant shall carry out the customs valuation of the goods, and the customs authorities shall control the accuracy of the customs value of goods determined by the declarant.
3. The fact that the goods are subject to sale and are declared for the purpose of release for free circulation is sufficient to consider those goods as sold for export to Georgia. Where, after the sale of the goods for export to Georgia, they have been resold (including in the customs warehouse), the price of their sale for export to Georgia shall be applied for the customs valuation of the goods.
4. For the purposes of this chapter, persons shall be deemed to be related if:
 - a) they manage one another's businesses (they are the persons authorised to manage the business entity);
 - b) they are legally recognised business partners (persons related by business interests);

6. The customs valuation of imported goods shall be carried out based on the following methods:
 - a) based on the transaction value (the first method);
 - b) based on the transaction value of identical goods (the second method);
 - c) based on the transaction value of similar goods (the third method);
 - d) based on the unit price of goods (the fourth method);
 - e) based on the computed value (the fifth method);
 - f) based on the reserve method (the sixth method).

7. Each method of customs valuation of goods provided for by paragraph 6 of this article shall be proceeded sequentially where the previous method cannot be reasonably applied. The declarant shall have the right to change the order of application of the methods of customs valuation of goods provided for by paragraph 6(d) and (e) of this article.
8. After the sale of goods for export to Georgia, the use of those goods in a third country before they are placed under release for free circulation may serve as grounds for refusal to determine the customs value of the goods based on the transaction value.
9. For the purposes of determining the customs value of goods, the price actually paid and/or payable shall be the total payment made or to be made by the buyer to the seller, or to be made for the benefit of the seller. Such price shall include all payments, both direct and indirect, as a condition of sale of the goods.
10. The amount of indirect taxes paid in the country of origin of goods or the country of export of goods shall not be included in the customs value of the goods.
11. Where, by the time of determining the customs value of goods:
 - a) the price of the goods has not been actually or fully paid, the price payable fully shall be used in determining their customs value;
 - b) the final price payable for the goods is higher than the price actually paid and/or payable, the final price payable shall be used in determining their customs value;
 - c) the final price payable for the goods is lower than the price actually paid and/or payable, the final price payable may be used in determining their customs value on the basis of the declarant's application, if this is an obligation laid down in the original contract.
12. Where the declared goods are part of the consignment purchased in a single transaction, the transaction value of the goods shall be as proportional to the price of the entire consignment as the quantity of the declared goods to the quantity of the entire consignment. The price actually paid or payable shall also be apportioned where part of the cargo has been lost.
13. In determining the customs value of goods, the provisions of this chapter shall also apply where the goods are placed under another customs procedure before they are released for free circulation or where the end use of the goods is changed.

Article 38 – Transaction value method

1. This article shall be applicable in combination with Article 44 of this Code, which provides for the adjustment of the price actually paid and/or payable for goods, where the buyer is required to pay certain elements which are part of the customs value but are not included in the price actually paid or payable for the goods.
2. The customs value of goods shall be determined based on the transaction value, i.e. the price actually paid and/or payable for the goods sold for export to Georgia, taking into account the requirements of Article 44 of this Code, provided that all of the following conditions are fulfilled:
 - a) there are no restrictions as to the disposal or use of goods by the buyer, except for restrictions which:
 - a.a.) are established or required by the legislation of Georgia;
 - a.b) define the list of the geographical areas in which the goods may be resold;
 - a.c) do not affect the value of goods;
 - b) the sale or price of the goods is not related to any condition or circumstance for which a value cannot be determined with respect to the value of goods. Where a value cannot be determined for such condition or circumstance, that value shall be considered as indirect payment made by the buyer and therefore as part of the price actually paid or payable;
 - c) no part of the proceeds of any subsequent sale, disposal or use of the goods by the buyer will accrue directly or indirectly to the seller, except in cases where an appropriate adjustment can be made in accordance with Article 44 of this Code;
 - d) the price actually paid or payable is calculated on the basis of objective and grounded data;

e) the buyer and the seller are not related persons. Where the buyer and the seller are related persons, the possibility of applying the transaction value method for determining the customs value of goods shall be determined taking into account paragraphs 3 and 6 of this article.

3. Only the fact that the buyer and the seller are related persons shall not serve as grounds for refusing the application of the transaction value method in determining the customs value of goods. In such case, all the circumstances of the sale of goods shall be verified and the transaction value shall be applied, unless the relationship between the said persons had an influence on the transaction value of the goods.

4. Where, on the basis of the information submitted by a declarant or otherwise received, the customs authorities have reasonable doubt that the relationship between the buyer and the seller has influenced the transaction value of goods, the customs authorities shall inform the declarant of their reasoned opinions (in writing where the declarant so requests). The declarant shall have the right to provide appropriate explanations in respect of the said opinions.

5. Where the buyer and the seller are related persons, the customs value of goods shall be determined on the basis of the transaction value method if the declarant has provided the customs authorities with evidence that the above value is as close as possible to any of the following values determined within the same period of time:

- a) the transaction value of identical or similar imported goods that the seller has sold to an unrelated person (buyer);
- b) the customs value of identical or similar goods under Article 41 of this Code;
- c) the customs value of identical or similar goods under Article 42 of this Code.

6. The procedure prescribed by paragraph 5 of this article shall be applied, if the declarant so wishes, for comparison purposes only. However, account shall be taken of the differences between commercial and quantitative levels, in the elements provided for by Article 44 of this Code, and the costs incurred by the seller following the sale of goods where the buyer and the seller are not related persons.

Article 39 – Method based on the transaction value of identical goods

1. Where the customs value of imported goods cannot be determined on the basis of the transaction value method, the customs value of goods shall be considered to be the transaction value of identical imported goods that were sold for export to Georgia and exported at or about the same time as the goods being valued.

2. For the purpose of this article, 'export of identical goods at or about the same time' means that the difference between the date of export of identical goods and the date of export of the goods to be valued does not exceed 30 days (the goods to be valued were exported 30 days before the export of identical goods or 30 days after their export).

3. For the purposes of determining the customs value of goods, goods shall be considered to be identical if these goods and the goods to be valued are identical by their physical characteristics, quality, reputation and country of origin. Goods shall be considered to be identical regardless of minor external differences between these goods and the goods to be valued, provided that they comply with the above definition in respect of other criteria.

4. Identical goods shall not be goods where the engineering, processing, artistic design, drawings and sketches thereof were produced in Georgia.

5. In applying this article, the transaction value of goods produced by a different person shall be taken into account where no data on the transaction value of identical goods produced by the same person (producer) can be found.

6. The basis for determining the customs value of goods in accordance with paragraph 1 of this article shall be one of the following:

- a) the transaction value of identical imported goods registered by the customs authorities which were sold for export to Georgia at the same commercial level and in the same quantity as the goods being valued (and the volume and price of the consignment are implied);
- b) in the absence of a condition under subparagraph (a) of this paragraph, the transaction value of identical imported goods registered by the customs authorities which were sold at a different commercial level and/or in different quantities, provided that the customs value of such goods is adjusted taking into account the differences attributable to commercial level and/or to quantity. Such adjustment may be made on the basis of evidence provided to the customs authorities, which proves the reasonableness and accuracy of the adjustment, whether the adjustment leads to an increase or a decrease in the customs value of the goods.

7. In order to take account of the difference in costs provided for by Article 44(6) of this Code resulting from the difference between the means of transport used to transport the goods to be valued and identical imported goods, and the distances of transport, adjustments to the customs value of the goods shall be carried out.

8. For the purpose of this article, the customs value of imported identical goods, adjusted in accordance with paragraphs 6 and 7 of this article, shall only be determined on the basis of the transaction value method.

9. Where more than one transaction value of identical imported goods has been identified, the lowest value shall be applied for determining the customs value of the goods to be valued.

Article 40 – Method based on the transaction value of similar goods

1. Where the customs value of imported goods cannot be determined on the basis of the transaction value method or the method based on the transaction value of identical goods, the customs value of goods shall be considered to be the transaction price of such similar goods as were sold for export to Georgia and exported at or about the same time as the goods being valued.

2. For the purpose of this article, 'exported at or about the same time' means that the difference between the date of export of similar goods and the date of export of the goods being valued does not exceed 30 days (30 days before or after the export).

3. For the purposes of determining the customs value of goods, similar goods shall be goods which are not exactly the goods being valued, however the similar goods and the goods being valued have the same country of origin, like physical characteristics and like component materials, which enable them to perform the same functions as the goods being valued and to be commercially interchangeable.

4. Similar goods shall not be goods where the engineering, processing, artistic design, drawings and sketches of such goods have been produced in Georgia.

5. In applying this article, the transaction value of goods produced shall be taken into account where no data on the transaction value of similar goods produced by the same person (producer) can be found.

6. The basis for determining the customs value of imported goods in accordance with paragraph 1 of this article shall be one of the following:

a) the transaction value of similar imported goods registered by the customs authorities which were sold in Georgia at the same commercial level and in the same quantity as the goods being valued (and the volume and price of the consignment are implied);

b) in the absence of a condition under subparagraph a) of this paragraph, the transaction value of similar imported goods registered by the customs authorities which were sold at a different commercial level and/or in different quantities, provided that the customs value of the above goods is adjusted taking into account the differences attributable to commercial level and/or to quantity. Such adjustment may be made on the basis of evidence provided to the customs authorities, which proves the reasonableness and accuracy of the adjustment, whether the adjustment leads to an increase or a decrease in the customs value of the goods.

7. In determining the customs value of goods, adjustments to the customs value of goods shall be carried out in order to take account of the difference in costs provided for by Article 44(6) of this Code incurred due to the difference between the means of transport used to transport the goods to be valued and similar imported goods, and the distances of transport.

8. For the purpose of this article, the customs value of similar imported goods, adjusted in accordance with paragraphs 6 and 7 of this article, shall only be determined on the basis of the transaction value method.

9. Where more than one transaction value of similar imported goods has been identified, the lowest value shall be applied for determining the customs value of the goods to be valued.

Article 41 – Method based on the unit price

1. For the purpose of this article:

2. Where the goods being valued, or identical or similar goods, are sold in Georgia in the same form as they were imported into Georgia (in an unaltered state), the customs value of the goods being valued shall be determined based on the unit price at which identical or similar goods were imported at or about the same time as the goods being valued, and were sold in the greatest quantity to unrelated persons, at the first commercial level, taking into account the following deductions:

- a) commissions normally payable or agreed to be paid in advance, or a cost plus that is normally applied for the purpose of making a profit and the reimbursement of costs associated with the sale of goods of the same class or kind in Georgia;

Where the goods being valued, or identical or similar goods, are not sold in Georgia at or about the same time as the goods being valued were imported into Georgia, the customs value of the goods being valued shall, taking into account paragraph 2 of this article, be determined based on the unit price at which the goods being valued, or identical or similar goods, are sold in the nearest time after the import of the goods being valued, but not later than 90 days, in the same form as they were imported into Georgia (in an unaltered state).

4. Where the goods being valued, or identical or similar goods, are not sold in Georgia in the same form as they were imported into Georgia (in an unaltered state), the customs value of the goods being valued shall, at the request of the declarant, be determined based on the unit price at which the goods being valued will be sold in the greatest quantity to unrelated persons after being processed in Georgia. However, the added value emerging during the processing of the goods being valued shall be deducted from their value, and the deductions provided for by paragraph 2 of this article shall be made.
